Note: I am including revenue received from July 15th from Paypro and a payment from CH received on July 1st even though I am only calculating tax and deductions up to June 30th.

The next revenue report will include deductions and tax collected for the entirety of July.

I have broken up the revenue reports for both April/May and June as I completed the April/May report at the beginning of June, and just completed the June revenue report.

Note: Revenue is being based on when it was received, not when it was earned.

Our shares are: $11,002.11 CAD each.

Shares will be sent via Transferwise Bank Transfer when I have the necessary information.

Another month where I am including only deductions for July but revenue up to Aug 15th. Maybe next month we'll wait the extra 15 days to get back to regular end of month rev reports.

Next month we'll have a payment from Payssion as well as a larger payment from Paygol which will boost the numbers a bit.

This month we get back to our regular monthly revenue reports which is good. There are 2 months worth of deductions in this report due to our last report only including deductions up to July.

This month will be a bit smaller than it otherwise would be since we won't receive the payment for our 'Among Us' sales until the next revenue report. We also have a pending Payssion payout that is estimated to arrive tomorrow, which puts it into the next revenue report. Most of our Paygol funds are still pending so we will likely have a payout for those next month as well. Overall though, our total earnings were still up this month and will be even larger next month.

Fair drop off in revenue this month from the previous one, Among Us sales dropped off quite a bit and there weren't any other titles to pick up the slack. Adding single BF5 subscriptions turned out to likely have been a good idea, with 32 sold so far (We rank well for these keywords).
